“ I was a kid of 16 when I worked as a reporter/photographer at The Jackson Pioneer. The place was full of Scharenborgs who took me under their collective wings to give me an understanding of the composing and press rooms that served me well for half a century in the ink-slinging business.

*Everett, in particular, showed a lot of patience. He turned me loose on a Linotype machine, even though I produced more squirts than slugs. The training I got at The Pioneer stood me in good stead with back shop folks in four states. I think of him and his family often.*
