“ I had met James when I purchased windows from window world, and found him to be an extremely nice helpful outgoing gentlemen, who loved his children and made them a part of his sales talk. Although I did not know him that well he presented himself as a loving father trying to make a living for his family. I had seen him on the 18th of April and being a Christian the Holy Spirit had placed it heavily on my heart (more so than normal) to witness to James about the love of our Saviour Jesus Christ, regretfully time was short and we talked business and on his way he went without my chance to open that door. I have a heavy heart for that and I am praying for James and his children. May Gods peace be with your family, especially his children.

“ I met James when I purchased windows from Window World. I just wanted to say what a kind and caring person he was. He talked about his children often and it was obvious how much they meant to him. He was so excited about being promoted to sales and what that would mean for his family. He reminded me a lot of my own two sons in that he wasn't afraid to let people know what his family meant to him. I am so sorry for your loss. Sincerely, Cindy Gaines
