“ Jerry, I only crossed paths with you twice. Once, in 2009 when a group of kids were bothering you outside of the old Cup & Cork. I stepped in and then we shared a cup of coffee. A decade later you approached me as we both enjoyed music at the Library. I asked if you wanted a drink and an ice-cold coca-cola was your choice. Many people approached me (a woman in her late 20's) to ask if you were bothering me. I hated the moment for you, but you were unscathed and we continued to enjoy each other's company well into the evening. I even got you to dance. You were a perfect gentleman, kind soul, and fixture of the community. Fair winds and following seas, my friend.
