“ I was five or six years old. My sisters and I were playing outside. I remember it was really hot out which is why we were in the shade on the carport. My dad kept hollering at us to come in for supper. We were frozen in fear. There was a wasp as big as a dog crawling around on the ground by the door, blocking us from coming inside. When he came out to see why we weren't minding, we just pointed as our knees were shaking from fear. Without hesitating, he stepped on the wasp, which now looked to be about the size of an ant. He told us it was stupid to be afraid of bugs. “They are more afraid of you than you are of them.”

“ Thank you John & Lori (and family) for your friendship and the love you have shared with me and my family. Many years ago you brought me into the prison ministry and taught me how to love the inmates with Gods love. Thank you! You always showed faithfulness to your call. I am reminded of all the laughter you brought into my lives as we sat by the hour playing games at your dining room tables. We have laughed together, worshiped together, and now we cry together. I thank God for you and all you have taught me along the way. My prayers are with you and your family. John is dancing in his new body like we couldn't begin to imagine. Oh how I would love to be allowed just one sneak peek at him right now. No pain, no sadness, no weeping, and most of all he has now seen face to face the one who he loves so much face to face. What an awesome guy! I love you. Mike & Marcia Mahurin
