PS

I searched & searched to find out what happened to my Good online Scrabble Friend Pat. She & I played scrabble for a few years online. We shared alot of news together. Last I had the chance to talk to her online was when I told her that my beloved husband of 58 yrs was diagnosed with esophael cancer, since then her past away in December. Her & I had a good friendship - I was so sad when her 'Precious' passed away but happy for her to get her 'Angel' I wanted to tell her that I too got a puppy named 'Buddy' We would have had so much to talk about.

She sounded so Loving talking about her grown children and grandkids that she Loved Very Much. We were the same age and both smokers. Her storey about meet with an out of State Man that time cracked me up and taught her a lession.LOL! I will never meet anyone online like her again. I know of another player who has been searching for her and misses her and I will sadly let her know.

At least I know that my dear friend is in No pain now Resting in Peace. She will be missed. MY Condolences to Her Family.
