“ Though Scott and I were never really close, I always felt that he had a gentle, quiet way and seemed to care a great deal for his family. I got to know him a little better from his periodic calls to me to see how my mother (his aunt) and family were doing.

I remember in my younger days Scott offering to drive me somewhere in Cape when my family and I were visiting, just so I'd have something to do. It was also about a few years ago when Scott and Jane invited me to stay with them, when I was considering a trip to Cape for an event.

He was always very industrious, and I believe he was the "handyman" for the family. I know he will be missed, but take comfort in knowing that he is now in a better place, and I can look forward to seeing him again someday.

*In Deepest Sympathy,
Walter Watkins*
