“ It is a daunting task that you undertook in order to wake up the sleeping American citizen from his blissful daze of ignorance. For that undertaking, and your service to the people of this country during your time in the Pacific Theater during WWII, you have my respect and thanks. I only wish that I had known you, and had the opportunity to discuss the issues that were important to you, as I believe that we have a commonality of interests in this area. Rest in it God's soothing embrace,

“ My condolences to the family of my dear cousin Vic. My friend Mary and I went by to see Vic the last time we were in town and took him down to watch dancing. We had a good time and teased him about dancing with Bea.
